Layering is one of the most important aspects of a sophisticated interior, a move our Harmon Wall Sconce knows oh so well! The clean-lined rectangles that create the composition are put together so cleverly, the location of the light source is not at all obvious when viewing it straight on. The mystery plays out when illumination reflects from the sides behind the extended front panel in a polished brass finish and from the front beneath the slimmer panel in a darker finish. The Harmon is such a versatile luminary, it is perfect for so many settings.
